WELCOME TO SIENA AND TO THE UNIVERSITY OF SIENA

Dear International Student,

I just want to take you a little time to welcome you to the University of Siena for the 2019-2020 academic year. Also on behalf of my colleagues and all the members of the academic staff, I simply want to say that I am extremely happy to know that you are now part of our community.

The University of Siena has a long history of European and international linkages. Established in the XIII century in one of the richest and culturally stimulating free cities of the Middle Age Italy, our University has been always open to inter-cultural and international exchanges. More recently, this natural predisposition has evolved in an explicit policy of internationalization. Students from many different countries are enrolled in many of the about seventy programs we offer. They work side by side and they live the city-campus, together with thousands of Italian students and with hundreds of visitors – both European and overseas incoming students – who arrive every year, to spend at least one semester with us.

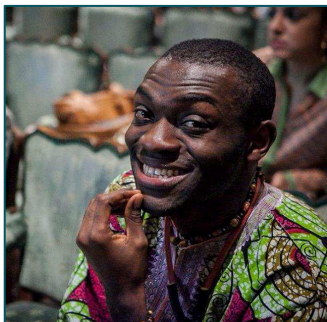

All these students contribute to transform this beautiful town into an international environment. This is after all our main goal: to teach new generations of scholars and professionals from all around the world, who in turn will be able to change our life. I firmly believe that this is a fundamental aspect of our mission, and I am sure that the more we will be able to get truly international classes, the more our world will be able to respond to all the challenges, ensuring peace and prosperity.

Once again, welcome to the University of Siena. And my best wishes for a productive staying.

Sincerely,

Luca Verzichelli
Rector's Delegate for Internationalization

GREETINGS FROM AN EX STUDENT TUTOR

My name is Fabrice and I'm from Cameroon. When I first came to Italy, in August 2010, to study Medicine I was lucky enough to be housed because some of my family members were already living in Siena. More often, it is necessary to look for a place to stay upon arrival; one can even apply to the DSU Toscana (Regional Authority for Higher Education Grants) for short term accommodation at the so-called 'foresteria'. After a couple of days of adjustment to the new city, I had to fill in all the forms to register at the university. I went to the Revenue agency to collect my Italian fiscal code, then, to the university office responsible for the admission of international students, to submit all the documents released by the Italian diplomatic representation in Cameroon. After that, I applied for a resident permit at the "Sportello Amico" of the Italian postal services. Finally, I went to the university's Information office (URP), where I got the additional information to complete my matriculation. Nowadays, the EU/non EU students' enrolment process for first and second level degree courses takes place at the "URP e International Place", which is located at the International Place (Banchi di Sotto 55, Siena). Before coming to Italy, I trained to study in a foreign country. I attended an Italian language course for six months which helped me communicate and live everyday life.

If you have any doubt about what you need to do when you come for the first time to Italy, you can contact the "URP e International Place", by sending an e-mail to internationalplace@unisi.it

My life as a student at the University of Siena

It was after these fundamental steps that I started enjoying Siena, while waiting for the courses to start. My day begins around 7 am, when my alarm rings. After having breakfast and a shower, I leave for the university. To reach the Policlinico le Scotte, where my classes take place, I need transportation. Many of the university premises are downtown, within walking distance if you live in the town centre. As I don't have a car, I always travel by public transport. The first time I got on a bus, I didn't even think to buy a ticket and punch it, thus risking a fine. Now I have a student pass, which is more convenient, to be renewed every three months at the Tiemme office located in the underpass in Piazza Gramsci. On the bus, I try not to make noise and if there is an elderly person aboard, I give my seat to him/her. It is quite important to realize that a bus, as well as the university and the city, are public property, therefore you need to behave appropriately. Do not damage them or disturb people. Let's say that you need to respect the principles of civil behavior, even though some people may not do it. An alternative to bus transportation is bicycle. The municipality offers a cheap bike annual membership that allows you to ride it for free for an hour.

I've never used them but the service is reported to be useful.

The city of Siena

The first time I entered a university classroom to attend lessons, what I noticed was diversity: multiple ages, religions, cultures, languages and traditions. I also noticed that there was a great need to know these people and learn to live with them so that no one would feel discriminated.

Sieneese people have different traditions too, especially in terms of the Palio. The city is divided into 17 districts called contrade and each of them is considered a proper household. The members are very protective of their contrada; they always keep the streets clean and are not happy if someone dirties or damages something in the city. They organize events and other kinds of activities. Even in this case, public goods and spaces, people and ideas, are strongly respected.

Study and leisure

My classes are held both in the morning and afternoon. During lunch time I go to the nearest university canteen (in my case, it is the one in San Miniato), where meals are cheap and delicious. When I am done with my classes, I go back home for a rest, then prepare dinner (yes, I even learnt from my first day in Italy how to cook typical Italian meals!).

Usually my day ends up that way and as you might have noticed, I don't have much time for entertainment during the week. I study hard not to lose my scholarship and to respect the terms of renewal of my residency permit, otherwise, I will have to go back to Cameroon. During the week-end, of course, I find time to have fun with friends. Siena is not a large, lively city, but if you can succeed in creating a group of friends, I am sure that you will have a lot of fun. But you will discover all these things slowly, while living in Siena.

What do I recommend?

Here is my advice. Study not to lose your scholarship (if you are a grantee) and to graduate as soon as possible. Find a way to integrate understanding and respecting others as much as possible. Never forget your traditions and your origins. Get around to discover the city; let music make your evening wonderful. Let the city of Siena leave a lasting impression on your life and mostly, make sure you behave the way Siena will always remember you.

Ex student tutor,
graduated in Medicine and Surgery

NATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE

Apart from the health insurance for your residence permit, in order to have a doctor in Siena you must enroll in the National Health Service S.S.N. (Servizio Sanitario Nazionale). To do so you will need to show the Local Health Authority (USL) your residence permit application or residence permit. At the moment the cost for foreign students without an income in the previous year in Italy or abroad is around 160 euros per year.

This fee is valid for each full calendar year: partial payment is not accepted and cover is not retroactive. This insurance is advisable for overseas students staying in Italy for a long period of time, as it allows them to use the same healthcare services as Italians, including the selection of a general practitioner who can prescribe medicines and tests if needed. Those in possession of a document proving their right to healthcare on the basis of bilateral agreements between their country and Italy (issued by a health authority or other authority in their country of origin) can show this document to the USL to access the healthcare provided for in the agreement.

Lastly, students with a residence permit for study who have a contract of employment have the right to be enrolled (free of charge) with the national health service for the duration of the contract.

For further information contact the following office:

Assistenza sanitaria per i cittadini stranieri

USL 7, via Pian d'Ovile 9, Siena.

What is the validity of the registration for the National Health Service (S.S.N.)?

It can be renewed by submitting documentation proving the renewal of residence permit to the ASL. In case of non-renewal or revocation of the residence permit, or in case of expulsion, the registration expires.
