COMMUNICATION AFTER THE SESSION OF THE ACADEMIC SENATE
FEBRUARY 25, 2021

Following the evolution of the epidemiological situation in Tuscany, the Academic Senate orders the suspension of all teaching activities in presence, starting from Monday, March 1st. The lectures will take place exclusively in the remote mode.

All laboratory teaching activities may be held in presence, in strict compliance with safety measures.

Upon the request of the professor and in agreement with the students, the directors of the departments can authorize the carrying out in presence of courses with a limited number of students.

These measures remain in force until April 6th, unless otherwise communicated.

The departments, research laboratories, libraries and reading rooms remain open, also for the students who wish to use the university connection for attending online lectures, maintaining the limitations for access to authorized users only (employees, students, PhD students, postdocs of the University of Siena) and registering the entrances to the buildings.

In all the university premises, all authorized users are still requested to maintain a correct behavior, avoiding gatherings.
